

Missing Persons

Have you seen this man.

Joseph Kent disappeared on the night of the 8th of August after leaving his office at the Society for Antiquities. His friends have partners have had no contact from him in the last month and are appealing for any information as to his where about. If you have seen him please contact the police or Marcus Vinchettie of the Society of Antiquities.

For Stuart

Newcastle Psycho

In the early hours of the 9th of August an elderly lady walking her dog came across the remains of a young man. She alerted the police and is now undergoing therapy for the stress of the incident. According to leaked sources the man in question had been professionally killed and then skinned so Mrs Buckley's reaction is understandable. The police are of course denying this and claiming that the body was simply stabbed to death as the result of a drugs deal gone wrong. However, the murder occurred next to the Gateshead Hilton Hotel, hardly a spot known for it's drug trafficking, more it's business men! We may never know the truth of this event, but if this murder marks the start of a psycho killing spree then God help us, because no one else can.

Bobus Bobum Castellum

Issue 3 - October

The Party is Over

This month has seen the answers to all the questions concerning Samuel Cleveland's murder and it is far more shocking than any of use could have predicted. Upon his return from Holiday Paul Goat was arrested and is now being charged with countless acts of kidnapping, smuggling and participation in the slave trade. It seems that Mr. Cleveland's partner is left to take the fall for their combined criminal activities.

The final break through the came from the British consulate via the Amsterdam police force. Two young women arrived by taxi at the embassy claiming to have been kidnapped in Newcastle, smuggled to Amsterdam with several others who had since been sold on to private owners as slaves, mostly in the sex industry. The two were broken out of a holding pen by an unidentified man who incapacitated the criminals and ushered the girls into a waiting taxi. Those at the scene are now being questioned by the Amsterdam police whilst the women are being flowed back to the UK to be reunited with their families.

Back on British soil Mr. Goat is expected to spend the rest of his life behind bars and the Party on a Boat business has been confiscated by the police department pending a full investigation to see the extent of the illegal activities. The only question left is that of who killed Mr. Cleveland? The mysterious man in Amsterdam, a criminal contact turned nasty, someone hired by an ex-victim? The police are now investigating the case as a Vigilante attack but seem non too eager to actually find a suspect.

All Things Through Faith

The mixed faith conference planned for the 3rd of October in the Civic Centre almost failed to happen due to strikes earlier this month. When the Civic Centre cleaners walked out over pay disputes it seemed as though the event was doomed to not take place simply due to the fact there would be no one to clear up after them. Father Collins said, "It was a near disaster as we would have had to cancel the whole event and the opportunities that would have been lost would have been immeasurable. We offered to arrange the clean up ourselves, but the Combined Union of Cleaners would not let us and the Civic Centre would not allow an event whilst there was no sanitation officers working."

All was not lost though as a loop hole was found that allows all parties to be happy. A voluntary organisation stepped in and offer there services to clear up after the event. This appeased the Civic Centre without annoying the Union as no one was undercutting their jobs, so the event is now back on track and set to go ahead. When asked about the situation Rabbi Ishmael said, "I was never in any doubt that a miracle would be forth coming, what is the point to faith if we do not believe the little things will happen let alone the big things. The voluntary wing of the blood donor service from the Royal Victoria Infirmary may not realise that they are the hand of Yahweh in this situation, but that is simply the case!"

A Whole Barrel of Illegal Immigrants

Thirty six illegal immigrants were caught trying to sneak into the country in a crate that was meant to contain pharmaceutical compounds for medical research. Due to an anonymous tip off the crate was intercepted and the people in it have been taken into custody awaiting deportation back to South Africa.

It is not exactly clear whether they were fleeing something or simply trying to smuggle themselves in for a better life, but as the pharmaceutical R&D department effected has chosen not to press charges it is simply up to the Board of Immigration to decide upon their fate.

Dog Fails Dope Test

The winner of the three twenty race on Friday 28th of July, Expecting Puberty, has received a six month ban for failing a routine drugs test. When a sample of the dogs urine was selected for random sampling it was found to contain a phenomenal level of steroids. One expert claimed that the dose the dog must have received to yield this result would have been enough to fuel an Olympic weight lifter. Whilst this is the third such case in as many months at the Newcastle Racecourse, the race organisers still protest their innocence.