Brief Game Overview:

People gathered at the burial ground of the city patrol to carry out 2 rites, the winter rites and the cairn stone rite for Tyrell and Bearclaw of the city patrol. After the guests had arrived and just prior to the rites, a member of the 33rd (a mercenary spirit group) came in and demanded the rest of their payment from the pack the Fangs of Galie as they had failed to meet the 60 essence that they had promised. The rites were carried out with nothing untoward happening. While guests to the city Chase, Jo and Kara partook in them also. After the rites the Fangs of Galie had pack business to carry out while Catriona took the guests of the city to the hotel where a room was booked for festive celebrations where a spirit of celebration met them and asked them to play games in order to win "prizes". The prizes turned out to be Tallens (one use fetishes)

The Fangs of Ghealai headed for another place briefly, as Scott wished to confront the members who had left Mirax at the spider's mercy. Having been freed once Miakoda had returned with Hunter of Aeons, Mirax hadn't been happy. Scott questioned all of the others, before demoting Eric to Omega, however Eric, displaying his regret, left the pack. Mirax was given five minutes alone with Eric, yet her fortitude and feelings of melancholy and confusion led her to reject the offer of beating the former pack member.

Eric of the Fangs of Galie arrived at the hotel where the rest of the night was to take place, a bit later without his pack declaring that he had left the pack and was now on his own. A short while later the fangs of galie arrived and the competitions carried on. Games such as poker and hide and seek were played and items that appeared fairly random to the common eye were won. At one point Mirax won a newspaper, which turned her invisible before disintegrating into dust. As the evening progressed mirax decided she wanted to do some research yet when she opened the laptop the Major was looking out of the monitor at her and able to communicate with Mirax, Cat and Scott. No-one else could see him on the monitor. Cat tried to talk the problem through with Kara who decided summoning him was a good thing to do. While the residents of Newcastle agreed in principle they stood by the door in case it exploded.

At the end of Kara's ritual they were all transported to the Silo and were stood in front of the major, who wanted mirax to come and stay at the silo to be "observed" till she died as the final part of his research. There was much binding and ritualising on the part of Kara to try and keep him bound as things started to go wrong Scott took the fangs away for safety and tried to come back but was ordered away by Cat. Kara stayed to carry on the ritual and Jo and Chase stayed as long as they could while Kara ritualed away. At the end of the ritual the major was defeated and Kara became trapped in the pocket dimension as it closed off from all other realities. A small amount of luck placed a small spirit capable of rending the gauntlet in Kara's pocket which he released to free himself and with a little help from Jo, Cat and Chase he was freed. Cat returned to the hotel to pick up peoples belongings that had been left behind to find that it hadn't just been the people who had been transported during Kara's ritual but the entire room.
